* Three courses of the required 16 must be about material from before 1800. They can be taken as desired across the two years of coursework (1 in the first year, 2 in the second or vice versa). Two of these must be taken in the Department of French. The three courses must cover a minimum of two different periods, e.g., medieval and 18th century.

 Students enroll in the Dissertation Workshop at least once, although they are encouraged to enroll in each year they are in residence.

 Students must meet the foreign language requirement by the end of Year 4, but ideally by the end of Y3. This can be done by passing an exam offered by the relevant department or by receiving a a grade of B or higher in an advanced course (at minimum, the fourth semester of the language sequence) offered in the language. Courses must be approved by the DGS, but note that only one language course above the 3000-level can count towards the 16 required courses for the PhD.
